

Refurbishment and extension of the ancient Town Hall of Fuentes de Andalucía. Seville. Spain (2010-2022)

Ignacio Laguillo Díaz. Architect

07A001716 - Built Heritage Category

Heritage protected area

V COAS Prize. Chamber of Architects. Seville
 Selected Spanish Architecture Prize 2023. CSCAE Madrid
 Prize XVI Biennial of Spanish Architecture and Urbanism. Madrid
 A+ Architecture Prize 2023. Barcelone
 Selected Bigmat International Architecture Award 2023. Luxemburg
 Selected Mies van der Rohe Prize 2024. Barcelone
 Finalist XIII Biennial of Iberoamerican Architecture and Urbanism. Lima Andalusian Architecture Prize 2024. Heritage Category

Fuentes de Andalucía, located in the Seville countryside, in the Guadalquivir valley, stands out for its monumental wealth and its historical connection with agriculture.

The extension integrates perfectly with the existing neoclassical structure, also refurbished, surrounded by protected churches and convents. Following the Islamic urban layout, the new building closes off from the street and opens up to the interior; more open and public on the access levels, and with the work spaces concentrated on the upper floors. Much of the materiality is based on natural lime mortars, with plant traces on the facades, evoking this landscape relationship noted.

Model of the Protected Heritage of the surrounding area

Extension and new access from the street

Ancient Town Hall (18th c.) - View from Plaza de España

Extension - View from inner courtyard

Previous architectural state and process