

3rd edition

EUROPEAN AWARD FOR ARCHITECTURAL HERITAGE
AADIPA

The European Award for Architectural Heritage intervention AADIPA is a biennial contest organized with the support of COAC (Official Association of Architects of Catalonia) and AADIPA (Association of Architects for the Defence and Intervention in Architectural Heritage), the purpose of which is to distinguish patrimonial good practices and contribute to their disclosure.

The contest is aimed at consolidating itself as a catalyst and observatory of new challenges added to the conservation and intervention in built heritage by the globalization of contemporary architecture.

Categories

The call is divided into four categories:

Category A: Intervention in built heritage

Aimed at all those architectural interventions, ephemeral or permanent, in buildings, at any scale. Interventions are mainly considered in protected buildings and groups of buildings, but may also involve all those interventions of culturally specific interest which have no protection, but are embedded in an urban or naturally protected space and help to define its historic character.

Category B: Outdoor spaces

Aimed at all those interventions intended to propose solutions to the historic public space, understood as a space facilitating the social and economic relations that exist in historic centres. Those spaces that are declared monumental groups of buildings are also included, as are those that constitute the origin of villages, towns and cities. Interventions in the area of monuments and cultural landscapes are also accepted.

Category C: Urban Planning

Aimed at all those Special Plans for heritage protection, catalogues, inventories, or other planning instruments, involving the protection, conservation and enhancement of architectural heritage. General planning documents, those documents derived from planning, etc., are also included, as well as those at local level that are aimed at the protection of architectural heritage.

Category D: Dissemination

Aimed at all those initiatives and actions which are mainly concerned with the dissemination of architectural heritage values, not only among professionals and technicians in the industry, but in society in general. Publications, articles, audiovisual accounts, presentations, events and all kinds of activities related to the promotion and appreciation of this heritage are also accepted.

Who

Any professionals or associations linked to architectural heritage, such as: architects and architectural firms, town planners, historians, archaeologists or AADIPA members are eligible for entry.

The following groups of people may not enter the contest:

Any member of the COAC board, those connected to it and the AADIPA board.

Any jury member, or the members of the management team of the awards, as well as employees, collaborators or their associates or those related to them (until second degree of consanguinity and second of affinity).
